Heartwarming Fight to Win Back Children He Abandoned

Rod Steiger Flips for a Black Beauty

He once told an interviewer "women think I'm a monster," but Oscar-winning star Rod Steiger has found a stunning lady who thinks he's a pussycat — beautiful black actress Joyce Williams.

Friends say three-times-married Steiger, 66, and 32-year-old Joyce, a former Playboy bunny, fell in love at first sight — and have actually made a pact to be faithful to each other.

By RICHARD TAYLOR

"I love her very much," Steiger told a friend. "She's everything I've ever looked for in a woman, beautiful and intelligent."

The actor's friend added, "They're inseparable. They spend most of their time at Rod's beach house, talking for hours. Rod looks years younger since he has been seeing Joyce."

And Steiger himself says, "Joyce is a very special person."

"We enjoy being together. She's a beautiful and intelligent girl."

In 1976, Steiger had a triple coronary bypass operation, and the friend revealed that doctors say he still must take life easy.

"But it doesn't hinder their fun. They often take long, romantic walks along the beach or drive into the mountains."

"He told me, 'She makes me feel like a new man.'"

"He's definitely in love. I haven't seen him this happy in years."

And that's good news for Steiger, who once admitted that he'd considered killing himself in 1976.

Overcome with depression over his heart problems and the breakup of his third marriage, Steiger said, "I actually thought about buying a gun, rowing a boat out to sea, putting the barrel in my mouth and blowing my brains out."

But Steiger pushed on — and after romantic flings with several women he met stunning Joyce, who introduced herself to him at a party last May.

"It was love at first sight," recalled a close friend of Joyce.

"The two were completely taken with each other from the moment their eyes met."

"People who were at the party couldn't help but notice the sparks that flew from that special moment."

"They just stared at each other for what seemed like hours. For the rest of the party they were totally inseparable, and spent most of the time huddled together in a corner talking, laughing and holding hands."

Joyce told her friend, "I love Rod dearly. He makes me feel like I've never felt before. He's warm, sensitive, very loving and kind."

"When I'm with Rod, I'm on cloud nine."

"Our age difference doesn't matter to me the least bit. Rod is just a wonderful, passionate man with more zeal than a lot of men half his age."

Another friend of Joyce revealed that the actor has tender love poems he's written.

"He's written literally dozens of breathtakingly beautiful poems for Joyce," the friend said. "He'll recite one to her, and Joyce is left breathless."

"She tells me she just reaches out and kisses him passionately."

The source said Joyce has dated many actors — including Ryan O'Neal, Warren Beatty and James Caan — but none of those much surpassing compared to veteran actor Steiger, who won an Oscar for his performance as a Southern sheriff in the movie

"In the Heat of the Night." "The others were really into the Hollywood scene — all the parties and social events," the friend said. "Joyce isn't interested in any of that. Rod's much more down to earth."

The friend also revealed that the couple have sworn a lovers' pact to be true and honest with each other.

"Rod and Joyce want their love to be for keeps, and they formed the lovers' pact to make sure it never fades."

"In much the same way that newlyweds exchange vows, Joyce and Rod exchanged vows in a commitment to honor, love and respect each other."

"They promised they wouldn't cheat on each other, and that honesty would be very important in their relationship."

The couple's racial difference doesn't bother Steiger and Joyce at all, friends say. According to one of them, Joyce was previously married to a white man, and had a daughter with him 12 years ago.

"Rod is both very liberal and open-minded," his friend said. "The fact that Joyce is black doesn't matter to him in the least."

"He's in love with Joyce — and he wouldn't care if she was green!"

Overworked? Striking Air Controllers Had It Easy!

By RON CAYLOR

Before they walked off their jobs, America's air traffic controllers complained they were overworked — but in fact the average controller was spending just four hours a day, and sometimes less, tracking airplanes, a startling government report reveals.

And the rest of the time, pampered controllers lounged around in plush rooms stocked with books, TVs, couches and drink machines, according to the General Accounting Office (GAO) study, done before the strike.

"The controllers made the statement they were working excessive times — and we found out they were actually working 40 to 60 percent of their eight-hour day," said Thomas Reese, group director of the Community and Economic Development Division of the GAO.

"I think the controllers now (since the strike) are working more. There is a ready room in every facility, and that's where most of the controllers spend their time away from their operating position."

Richard Suler, executive vice president of the National Taxpayers United of Illinois, charged, "It's very clear the controllers who were on the job before the strike were not working very hard."

"They were spending half their working day doing nothing! It's just extortion that they want more money and fewer hours."

And even though the striking controllers say they were undermanned, another bombshell

GAO report issued before the strike, says the U.S. could actually eliminate 66 low-use control towers — and hundreds of air controller jobs. GAO investigators estimated savings up to $15 million a year from the cuts.

Since the strike started, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has eliminated 4,506 controller positions, closed 58 towers and relocated their staff members — temporarily.

But with the nation's airports still operating smoothly and at less taxpayers' expense, those cuts should be made permanent, insists U.S. Rep. Ron Paul (R-Tex.).

"If the American public had this information, it's obvious they would insist on shutting down the towers," Paul said. "In fact, the FAA should have made these cuts long ago."

"We're making savings every place else, and if we're wasting it here it should be saved."

MIRACLE BABY

Love Overcomes Incredible Odds for Paralyzed Wife & Her Gentle Giant

In a romantic fairy tale come true, a champion weight lifter married a paralyzed girl — and now their joy is complete with the birth of a son.

"He gave me so much love, so much to live for, I just had to bear my husband a son no matter what the risks," said frail Heidemarie Mang, tears of joy welling in her eyes.

"It was my way of showing my deep love for my gentle giant."

Heidemarie, 28, struck down by polio as a child, was just 16 when she met brawny Rudolf Mang of Beltenberg, West Germany, winner of a silver medal in the 1972 Olympics for weight lifting.

The shy teenager wrote Rudolf asking for his autograph — and her letter drew him for a visit to her village.

"She was so tiny and frail when I first saw her," Rudolf, 31, known as "The Bear of Beltenberg," recalled.

"Those big eyes of hers started to stir things inside me almost from the start."

"I was traveling around to big cities, testing my strength against world-class athletes, but I only had eyes for the beautiful girl I wanted as my wife. I admired her courage then — and I admire it even more now."

For two years Heidemarie went to school in Munich — where she was taught to shuffle along with a cane. Then, in 1976, she married her devoted weight lifter.

Doctors warned Heidemarie about the dangers of having a baby. Since she'd had polio as a child, her pelvic bone had never fully developed. She'd have to deliver the baby by cesarean section.

"There were months of anxious waiting," she recalled. "My frail body had to cope with the baby inside me. I worried, 'Will my baby be affected by the disease that ravaged my body?' I had agonizing hours of doubt. Would my baby be born dead?"

"But through the long months, my husband was gentle and loving. When I needed it he picked me up in his huge arms and carried me about. When I was in pain his huge hands soothed my brow. No nurse could have been more tender."

"Then came the joyous day last March when my lovely baby boy Andreas was born. I cried with joy when I saw my son healthy and perfectly formed — a perfect miniature of his father. My joy was boundless when I saw the tiny baby cradled in the brawny arms of my husband."

Rudolf hopes that some day Andreas will take over the fitness centers he runs in two nearby towns.

"I have so many plans for my lovely son," beamed the Bear of Beltenberg. "Now we are a complete family!"

ADORING HUSBY: Rudolf Mang easily holds both his Heidemarie and his son Andreas in his weight lifter's arms.

Bull Horns In . . . Bullfighter Hops Out

"That's a lotta bull!" And when that much bull becomes enraged, you'd better be able to run fast and leap high if you're in the same arena. This French bullfighter flies over a wooden barricade to escape the sharp horns of a charging bull, in a bloodless version of bullfighting. The goal in this contest is not to kill or injure the animal, but to taunt the massive beast and grab a ribbon, which is attached to the bull's horns. This dangerous game has been played in southern French villages since the Middle Ages.

Demons Drive Family From House of Horrors

In the most vicious haunting in America's history, vile demons have invaded a once-quiet home in a sleepy Massachusetts town — and wreaked a hellish havoc.

The spirits have physically attacked the terrified family who lived there, wildly wrecked their home — and actually drove them out of the house five times in the past six months.

The horrifying agents of the Devil have battered and bruised members of the Lui Passetto family, hurled furniture and put the Passettos in fear of their lives.

Now the Passettos have abandoned their home.

The trembling family lived a day-by-day nightmare as the rampaging demons:

- Dragged deep marks in Mrs. Dale Passetto's face.
- Grogged her screaming from her bed and once tried to choke her to death.
- Beheaded religious statues and shattered a crucifix.
- Broke the hand of the couple's 11-year-old son J.B.
- Caused a toy stuffed dog to move around all by itself.

And as the horror continued, the spirits did much, much more.

"Our life has been a living hell. Oh, God, will it never leave us in peace?" said Dale.

The Passettos had lived in the home in Lee, Mass., for 22 months when the demons suddenly began terrorizing them last March 18.

Dale, 34, kept a daily written record of the evil spirits' attacks — and The ENQUIRER has obtained her incredible journal exclusively.

It's a diary of destruction and unending terror.

Brief accounts of the haunting appeared in most newspapers across the country — but now, for the first time, The ENQUIRER is bringing readers the full story.

The astounding events in the home were witnessed not only by the Passettos but by other people as well — including the Passettos' next-door neighbor, Mrs. Sally Mouglin.

"Once I was sitting there when suddenly two pitted red claw marks appeared on Dale's cheek! Another time a lamp was hurled off a table," said Mrs. Mouglin.

Respected psychic researchers Ed and Lorraine Warren, who've probed 3,000 cases of demonic possession and haunting including the famous Amityville Horror, have investigated the Lee haunting. Ed Warren actually spent a night in the Passettos' house — and came away shaken. His account of that night accompanies this story.

"This makes what happened in Amityville look like a kids' playground! It's inhuman — demonic!" he said. Added Lorraine Warren: "This is a very real phenomenon."

John Kenyhercz, a photographer, went to the home with Warren and, amazingly, got a photo of a demon.

Dale, her 23-year-old husband Lui, their son J.B. and 14-year-old daughter Heather now live with relatives. They've vowed never to return to their haunted home.

EXCLUSIVE: Chilling Diary's Tale of Terror

'I Was Pulled Out of Bed by Burning Hands'

Every heart-stopping moment of Dale Passetto's mind-bending struggle against evil demons possessing her house is caught in her gripping diary.

And here, exclusively for ENQUIRER readers, is Dale's chilling, day-by-day account of her family's desperate battle.

Ed Warren, a noted psychic investigator who spoke with the Passettos and studied the bizarre phenomena in their house firsthand, added the notes placed in parentheses.

The first spirit appearance came at 3 a.m. March 18. Dale was home alone with her two children while her husband Lui was at work.

March 19 — "I saw a figure standing in the hallway outside the bedroom — the figure of a small boy aged 8 or 9. It was dressed in white shirt, white pants and white shoes. It was almost like looking through a milk bottle. The boy would walk back and forth in the hallway. It stayed for about two hours and out, coming and going."

March 20 — "The white figure visited again, and spoke. 'Where do all the lonely people go?' It asked me. It was around 2 a.m. again, and it walked in and out of the bedroom."

March 21 — "Lui and I saw the figure again. It walked into the children's bedrooms and looked at them in bed. Then it came back in our bedroom and said: 'A lie has been told for much too long — the truth must be known.' Then it turned and walked away."

"For several weeks, the white spirit appeared every night. Then, on June 2, it took physical action against Dale."

June 2 — "About 3 p.m., we heard running up and down stairs. Suddenly something grabbed my hand, pulled a package from it and threw it on the floor in front of me and Lui. I yelled."

The next day the family called a priest and a monk from a nearby monastery who performed a mass in the house. They placed holy oil on the home's four outside walls, and went from cellar to attic with incense, holy water and oils. But instead of helping to quell the haunting, the mass seemed to provoke the demon.

June 6 — "1:30 to 2 p.m. My son J.B. was cloaking the windows because of a storm... but they kept opening after him. The shade kept falling in the bathroom. That

June 9 — "At 2 a.m. a black object appeared with very, very large feet. It was hooded and stooped, with a hunchback, and it stood between the bathroom and the bedroom. Lui was asleep — but he woke up after The Thing hit him in the head."

June 13 — "We were having dinner when something twisted my arm up behind my back. I started to cry with pain, then my head was being twisted further and further around. I was choking, turning blue, and Lui jumped up and yelled, 'Stop it!'"

(Warren added, "Lui began to struggle with the invisible monster. Eventually and bumping noises coming from the walls and ceiling." Warren recalled. "Nobody human was behind those walls making those noises."

"Suddenly, Dale said, 'My face feels like it's burning!' Right before my eyes, two three-inch long claw marks appeared on her right cheek."

"At the same time, ghostly lights appeared and moved around in the air with eerie motions. The lights he snatched the spirit away from Dale and said he actually felt it as he threw it across the room, against the wall."

About 9 p.m. we all went into the bathroom together after J.B. came running out and said something grabbed him by the underarm. Then the bookcase with about a hundred pounds of books went flying down from the top of the stairs. It was jammed to the stairway — as if to prevent us going down.

"The hidden stairway up into the attic kept banging open and shut — and we saw a bright light disappear into the attic ceiling."

"We saw the heads of the statues of the Sacred Heart and the Virgin Mother were both cut off. The ceiling upstairs started to crack."

June 14 — "We went to bed — but I was pulled out of bed by burning hands. They felt very large. I had bruises on my legs and arms."

June 15 — "About 9:30 p.m. the freezer door suddenly opened and slammed into my head."

June 17 — "We all heard a large noise in the hallway. A hanging plant was swinging in circles and hitting the window, harder and harder each time. It was about 9:30 p.m."

June 18 — "8 a.m. Noticed a large bulge in the wall, but when I went to show it to Lui later in the day it had gone. Next day at 10 a.m. it was there again, and Lui saw it this time. At 2:30 p.m. the plant started spinning again."

June 22 — "10 a.m. Got grabbed on the arm, then it let go. 1 p.m. — Kicked in right leg upstairs in bedroom. Large bruise on right leg."

June 23 — "My daughter Heather and I were at the bottom of the stairs, just going up, when the picture at the top of the stairs was thrown down, just missing Heather's head."

June 24 — "11:50 p.m.: White spirit appears in the bedroom. We put holy water on it and told it, 'In the name of Jesus Christ and by his precious blood we command you to leave and go into the hands of Jesus Christ.' It started to throw the phone again and again."

"Heather woke up and came into our bed. Lui woke up in the middle of the night and started yelling at Heather to stop growing so tall. Heather started to cry and a voice from behind the bed said in a very rough voice to 'Get out!'"

June 25 — "1 a.m.: White spirit playing with my rosary that was hung on the bed."

July 2 — "11:20 p.m.: Black spirit took all the ice from the freezer trays and smashed it on the floor. Midnight, black figure standing at foot of bed. It pulled me out by my hair. It was cupped and hooded with no facial features. We put holy water on it... and it laughed at us."

July 3 — "2 a.m.: The black figure appeared by the bed, again and pulled me out of bed by my arm. I was screaming for Lui to wake up, and he wouldn't."

July 7 — "9 a.m.: I was taking a shower when the black figure opened the door and the water shut off. I asked, 'What is your name?' It said, 'I am the Minister of God,' then it laughed and went away."

July 9 — "11:45 p.m.: Lui and I in bed. White spirit came. Lui asked its name. It said 'Angela.' Asked why it was there, it said, 'I live here.' Asked who sent you, it answered, 'The truth.' Asked how long you would remain, it said 'Forever.'"

July 11 — "Went shopping after church and when we came home the furniture in the living room was tipped over. We went in and heard very heavy breathing in the back room, and as we ran out onto the porch the TV went on all by itself. We went upstairs and the bed was torn apart and I got a punch in the side of my face. Then my face started to burn, and there were seven long, crisscrossing deep scratches on my face."

"10 p.m. The phone kept going dead. Lui came home and we went upstairs. He said I was yelling at him and then I punched him in the face and almost dislocated his jaw. I don't remember. I have NEVER hit my husband. It wasn't my voice yelling."

July 13 — "1 p.m.: Windows opened and closed. Heather's door opened and shut, then Heather's stuffed dog started to move and follow us around the room."

(Said Warren, "Suddenly the big, fluffy stuffed dog [Heather kept in a corner of the room started to inch menacingly toward them. Dale screamed and raced out of the bedroom and down the stairs — but that dog kept pace and followed them right to the front door. The family ran outside to escape.")

August 5 — "2:35 a.m.: Lui got called in to work. At 3 a.m. the walls started to bang, the floor started to tear apart up stairs and the bed was rising off the floor. I tried to scream, and the dog slammed as couldn't get out of the room. The dog was growling and the door opened. When I came to the kids' room screaming their doors slammed and wouldn't open. They wouldn't wake up."

August 7 — "Midnight: Lui and I were in bed when I started to feel like I was burning and when Lui looked I had three very deep scratches on my chest and an upside-down cross mark on my back and neck. All the marks were bleeding."

August 8 — "Cross over our bed was found on a hamper. When my son went to put it up it broke into four pieces."

(Warren added, "As J.B. sat at the kitchen table trying to glue back together the smashed crucifix, the powerful unseen force wrestled it from his hand with such inhuman strength he screamed. The boy suffered a broken bone in his hand.")

"A heavy (spool flew through the air and slammed down on J.B.'s head and left a large lump."

(Warren said the Passettos finally left their house for good August 28 — when the spirit seemed to go all-out to chase them. "The china closet had been pushed over once more. Cushions on the chair were in disarray, and they heard a low, horrible growling noise in the kitchen — a guttural, inhuman sound that made them absolutely petrified with terror. And then they heard a 'clunk.'"

"They walked into the kitchen — to find a butcher knife plunged into the kitchen tabletop. It was still awaying as they walked in."

"Dale started to cry. She looked up at Lui and said, 'That's it. I can't take any more. We've got to get out and stay out.'"

"That's when they quit the house for good. In fact, it's up for sale now.")

HOUSE OF TERROR where bizarre events took place

Psychic Investigator: I Saw Claw Marks Appear on Her Cheek

The moment he stepped into the Passettos' house, psychic researcher Ed Warren knew that he was up against something inhuman.

The owners, Lui and Dale, had asked him and his wife Lorraine to investigate the evil spirits that possessed their home.

"There were rattling, knockings and bumping noises coming from the walls and ceiling," Warren recalled. "Nobody human was behind those walls making those noises."

"Suddenly, Dale said, 'My face feels like it's burning!' Right before my eyes, two three-inch long claw marks appeared on her right cheek."

"At the same time, ghostly lights appeared and moved around in the air with eerie motions. The lights drifted to the bottom of the stairs, then formed into one big ball of light. Then it turned slowly, before our eyes, into the shape of the black spirit, looking just as Dale and Lui had described it."

"Suddenly four more black spirits appeared a few feet away and moved towards the first one at the foot of the staircase."

"A heavy pan in the sink suddenly levitated, came straight out of the kitchen and crashed against the wall."

"At the same time, a windowshade shot up, a heavy living room chair toppled over, and Dale started to scream horrendously."

"Then the house stayed quiet until the sun came up and we left. I had witnessed the work of horrible demons with my own eyes."

There really are "guardian angels" who warn people of danger and reassure them in times of grief, experts reveal.

And they have mind-boggling case histories like these to prove it:

• A 12-year-old girl was awakened by an apparition which warned her not to play in an old shack. The next day the shack collapsed.

• A woman received a phone call from her dead daughter, warning her about a malignant growth on the woman's thigh.

• Moments before gunfire ripped through the walls of a 3-year-old girl's bedroom, a spirit warned the girl to get out of there.

Guardian Angels Really Exist

They Comfort People and Protect Them From Danger

• After being visited by the spirit of her dead husband, a previously distraught widow found the strength to face life alone.

"From my research, I am thoroughly convinced that guardian angels do exist," declared Brad Steiger, a Phoenix, Ariz., parapsychology researcher and author of numerous books.

"I've spent countless hours traveling and documenting these kinds of cases, and the evidence clearly shows anyone can experience them."

"One woman wrote me that, as a 3-year-old child, she was lying in bed when a 'heavenly looking figure in a white gown' appeared — and warned her to leave her room just before gunshots went off outside the house. Bullets ricocheted into the bedroom — and had she remained there, she would probably have been killed! The woman says she still maintains contact with her guardian angel, and it still guides her."

A St. Louis, Mo., group that investigates psychic phenomena, The Haunt Hunters, receives many letters from people who have been helped by their guardian angels.

And in many cases, the angels seem to be the spirits of dead loved ones, said group president Philip Goodwilling.

"One case involved a woman whose 12-year-old daughter awoke in the early morning to behold a glowing young woman warning her to keep out of an old, unused shack on the property," Goodwilling said.

The next day, the shack collapsed in a loud roar — but no one was hurt thanks to the warning.

Several months later, looking through a family album, the girl identified a picture of her great-grandmother as the glowing woman.

"Her great-grandmother had died 15 years before the girl was born!"

In another astounding case, Goodwilling said, an Illinois woman actually received a telephone call from her daughter — six weeks after the girl's funeral.

"The girl's father answered, and he immediately recognized the voice of his only daughter," said Goodwilling. "He couldn't explain why he wasn't shocked immediately by the call."

The daughter asked to speak to her mother — and before her voice faded away, the woman heard her say, "Mom, see a specialist!"

The woman said her local physician had assured her that there was no reason to be concerned about changes in a mole on her right thigh. Yet this message from her daughter's spirit prompted a visit to a dermatologist, who confirmed it was a malignant growth and removed it.

Besides helping protect people from physical harm, the amazing guardian angels also try to save them from emotional stress, said Bonnie Lindstrom, a psychiatric nurse at St. Mary's Hospital in Tucson, Ariz. She visits relatives of patients who have died.

"One woman, about 80, was devastated after the death of her husband of 60 years. She said she couldn't go on — she wanted to die."

"However, about three months later she awakened in the middle of the night to see her husband standing next to the foot of her bed 'looking very healthy, as he did before he got ill.'"

"The woman reached out to hold him, but he disappeared."

"That turned out to be the turning point in the woman's grief. She was sure her husband was reassuring her that he was well taken care of, and that she should now get on with her life."

"Following that night, the woman's attitude toward life changed, and she has done absolutely beautifully ever since."

Enquirer's New Mascot Flips Over Flipper

By JOHN BLOSSER

The barks of a delighted dog and squeals of a cheerful dolphin swept across Florida's Miami Seaquarium — when Happy, The ENQUIRER's lovable new mascot met Flipper the superstar dolphin.

The two spent a rollicking afternoon together.

Flipper, all seven feet and 350 pounds of him, was fascinated with our shaggy blond pooch, adopted and named by readers after The ENQUIRER rescued him from a Boca Raton, Fla., dog pound.

Happy never saw a dolphin before meeting Flipper — who's had his own TV series, starred in films and is now entertaining countless visitors to south Florida.

Flipper poked his head out of water and Happy sniffed him cautiously. Suddenly, the dolphin playfully nipped the pooch's nose. Our Irish canine gave out a surprised "Yip!" — and nipped right back.

That broke the ice, and for the rest of the afternoon the two frolicked together.

"Happy acts like he's having the time of his life," laughed Lisa Hartman, one of the happiest dog I've ever seen."

Happy watched fascinated

as Flipper launched himself completely out of the blue waters of his lagoon, soared through the air and splashed down in a spectacular spray of water.

And that's got all the dolphin performed scores of stunts for the appreciative mult. And after each dazzling performance, he swam back to the dock, where landlocked Happy barked and rubbed noses with his new buddy.

Then Happy jumped into a small yellow boat and Flipper grabbed a trailing line in his teeth and took his new friend on a high-speed ride.

Next, Flipper dived under the boat and popped up on the other side as a mystified Happy was still looking for the superstar dolphin on the other side.

But our mascot soon caught on to the hide-and-seek game and surprised Flipper with sloppy dog kisses as he poked his nose up from the water.

"I've never seen Flipper take to another animal so easily — your dog's got a terrific personality," said Flipper's closest human friend, head trainer Joan Caron.

"Happy just charmed Flipper right off the bat. He's got a wonderful personality," added Sally Morden, another trainer.

Cpl. Klinger:

Almost Had a Nose Job That Would Have Ruined My Career

The eagle-beaked Jamie Farr of "M*A*S*H" says he once came within a hairbreadth of having a surgeon do a "nose job" on him—but a girlfriend talked him out of it. The girl convinced Farr that he'd look just like everyone else if he had his big nose reduced—and now he's glad she spoke up. "I wouldn't have gotten any of my big roles if I'd been a glamor boy. This nose is my mental ticket," said Farr, who plays wacky dress-wearing Cpl. Klinger on "M*A*S*H." But back around 1968, when he was still a struggling actor in Hollywood, Farr admits he seriously thought about having his nose straightened. "I broke my nose while diving into a swimming pool," he recalled. "I went to a hospital, and a girl I was dating went with me. 'A doctor asked me if I wanted a nose job along with repairing the broken nose,' he was young at the time and was tempted to get it. 'But this girl talked me out of it. She said, 'I don't want you to end up looking like everybody else.'"

So Farr said no to the nose job—and it wasn't long until he was enjoying the sweet smell of success. "Right off the bat I got a part as one of the toughs in 'Blackboard Jungle,'" he recalled. "I stand out in a crowd because of my nose and that's why I got that role."

Farr says his nose also landed him roles in the movie "The Greatest Story Ever Told" and the TV series "F Troop" and "The Dick Van Dyke Show."

"It's also why I got my role in 'M*A*S*H,'" he added. "Producer Gene Reynolds wanted somebody who wasn't effeminate to play the part of Klinger, and he saw me on 'F Troop.'"

Looking back, Farr says with a sigh. "Thank heaven for that girl who changed my mind!"

How Adding Machines Can Be Rigged to Cheat You

Most people automatically accept the total shown on an adding machine tape—but that machine can be easily rigged to rip you off!

In fact, unsuspecting consumers are being victimized daily by this unscrupulous ruse, experts say.

"Americans innocently accept the total shown on an adding machine tape as accurate, and seldom if ever do an independent check for themselves. What it all adds up to is a big rip-off," says Max Weiner of the Consumers Education and Protective Assn. in Philadelphia.

"Americans seem to think the tape receipt never lies, but in many cases they couldn't be more wrong. Here's how the rip-off— which costs consumers millions yearly—works.

The dishonest cashier rings up the items you're buying. For example: $2.50, $3.35, $2.40, $2.75, $1.10, $2.80. The total should be $14.00.

But before punching the "total" key, the clerk rolls the tape forward, actually advancing it an inch or so, then rings up whatever amount he wants to clip you for. Say it's $2. He rolls the tape back to where it was and rings up the total—$16.00! Presto! You've been bilked.

He even learns the tape out of the machine and hands it to you as your receipt—but of course the $2 figure isn't on it. It's on that part of the tape still in the machine, explained certified public accountant and business writer Joseph Arkin.

But it's not just the public being bilked. Adding machines can be manipulated to phony invoices, payroll payments and cash vouchers.

Modern chain grocery stores and department stores use cash registers that cannot be manipulated to swindle anyone, said Weiner.

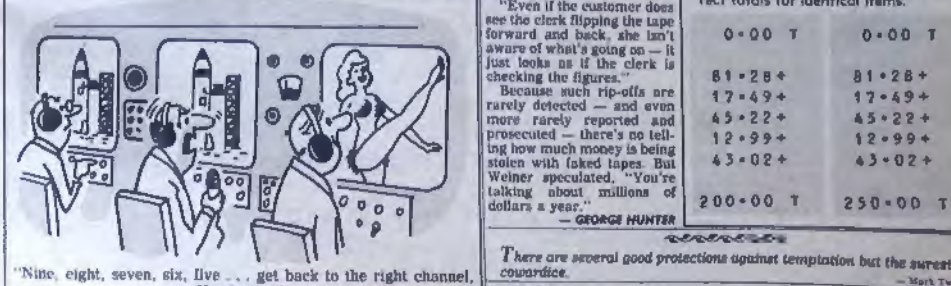

But he warned that this type of a rip-off is pretty widely used in little stores, the family businesses run by a husband and wife and others who don't have to account to a boss for cash taken at the end of the day.

"A clerk can manipulate the total in a couple of seconds, while the shopper is looking in her purse or chatting to a friend.

"Even if the customer does see the clerk flipping the tape forward and back, she isn't aware of what's going on—it just looks as if the clerk is checking the figures."

Because such rip-offs are rarely detected—and even more rarely reported and prosecuted—there's no telling how much money is being stolen with faked tapes. But Weiner speculated, "You're talking about millions of dollars a year."

New and Safer Way to Fight Cancer With Drugs

The latest weapon in the battle against cancer is — the clock! By administering potent anticancer drugs at specific times of the day, dangerous side effects can be dramatically reduced.

"This will allow doctors to give chemotherapy treatment longer than they have been able to do before," declared Dr. John Pauly, Ph.D., chairman of the department of anatomy at the University of Arkansas.

"And it follows that the longer you treat the patients and attack the tumor, the greater the chance to control — and even cure — the cancer," Dr. William Hruschsky of the University of Minnesota, who time-tested two of these potent cancer drugs, said that by administering them at specific times "we can give the patients' tumors heavier doses of the drugs. And it's a general principle of chemotherapy that the more drugs you get into a patient, the better your chance of controlling or curing the disease."

"Unfortunately, there is always some injury to normal cells in chemotherapy," Dr. Hruschsky said. "And the time of day that the drug is administered is very important."

"It should be injected when healthy tissue is most resistant and cancerous tissue is least resistant to a drug's effects."

Dr. Hruschsky time-tested two powerful cancer-fighting drugs — Adriamycin and cisplatin.

Adriamycin, he said, reduces bone marrow function as a side effect, increasing chances of infection, bleeding and weakness from the loss of blood cells.

Cisplatin, on the other hand, can cause permanent kidney damage. "But by administering Adriamycin at the best time — in the morning — we had 20 to 40 percent less damage to the circulating blood than when we gave it in the evening."

And, astonishingly, when cisplatin was injected into patients in the evening, there was 30 percent less kidney damage than when it was administered in the morning, the internist said.

Dr. Pauly told The ENQUIRER: "Frankly, I am rather excited about Dr. Hruschsky's work."

"This research can open the door to some major developments in cancer treatment — perhaps cutting the loss of lives."

Blessed Waste Of Your Tax $

Now our government's really gone loco with your tax dollars — blowing $6,719 to study how religion influences life in a small Spanish town!

The nitwit-run National Science Foundation (NSF) has awarded the money to a U.S. university student who plans to go to the province of Huelva in Spain for his incredibly useless study.

The student got the grant after convincing NSF's bosses that it's important to examine the influence of religion on the politics and economics of Huelva.

An NSF official insists the project is a "well-thought-out proposal which will help us understand man and power in complex societies."

But its meaning for U.S. taxpayers is already clear — they're getting shafted for more bucks, declares Rep. Bill Chappell (D-Fla.). "I doubt whether the NSF should be spending $6,719 on such a personal academic project," he said.

Archie Bunker Now Getting 250G a Week

By ALASTAIR GREGOR & PAUL JENKINS
Carroll O'Connor has carved out a fantastic new deal that makes him the highest-paid performer in the history of TV — surpassing even Johnny Carson. O'Connor will get an incredible $250,000 per episode for starring in "Archie Bunker's Place" this season. That's a total of $3.5 million for the 22 episodes.

New "CHiPs" regular Bruce Jenner holding up production because he just doesn't know how to act like a cop. Larry Wilcox and other cast members are being super-helpful — teaching Bruce how to frisk people, use handcuffs, etc. — but the show's still running hours behind schedule, costing producers thousands of bucks in overtime.

"Laverne & Shirley" star Penny Marshall breathed a huge sigh of relief when 17-year-old daughter Tracy nixed a marriage offer from love-struck Mark Getty, a 31-year-old millionaire to the Getty oil wells. Now Penny's willing to spend big bucks for a new LA home she'll share with Tracy.

Ex-"Charlie's Angels" Farrah Fawcett, Kate Jackson and Jaclyn Smith snubbed the producers of the Emmy Awards, flatly refusing to appear together in a segment featuring famous TV "families." The Emmy execs even asked the girls' former "Angels" bosses to talk them into it, to no avail.

He-man "Magnum, P.I." star Tom Selleck nursing a swollen jaw after a make-believe punch from costar John Hillerman really hurt him. Rehearsing a scene, Hillerman, who plays Higgins, connected by mistake when Selleck didn't duck in time. For the next few days Selleck had to keep his swollen, black-and-blue side away from the cameras.

Although she turned down a plum role in "Dynasty," glamorous Sophia Loren still wants to be a U.S. TV star. She's bought a home in California and is shopping around for a suitable masterpiece, TV movie or even a good weekly series. But Sophia's warning the networks she won't work cheap.

Golden Boy John Davidson's attempt to save his marriage crashed like a lead balloon. After a brief try at reconciliation with estranged wife Jackie, pals say Davidson's rebounded into the arms of gal pal Rhonda Rivers.

Telly Savalar is unpacking his lollipop — he's agreed to play "Kojak" again in three or four TV movies for CBS. The network also plans to market the flicks overseas — particularly in Australia and Britain where Telly's old "Kojak" show is still one of the top imported series.

"Dukes of Hazzard" star John Schneider fulfilled a lifelong fantasy when he borrowed a friend's Mustang sports car, sneaked into the deserted Indy 500 racetrack in Indianapolis, and roared around the oval at more than 150 m.p.h. A security cop nabbed John, but let him go in exchange for an autographed pic. However, John's pal was furious.

Erik Estrada and gal pal Beverly Sussman celebrated their first year together with a bang. Erik gifted Beverly with a huge diamond pendant worth $25,000, while she spent about $5,000 on a three-screen TV set and video games for him. "Flamingo Road" beauty Morgan Fairchild was left scratched and nursing injured ribs after being crushed by a mob of wild fans on a New York street. Morgan, who plays Constance, had to be rescued by the driver of her limo. She later confided to pals that it was a "terrifying experience."

Big Lou Meets A Little Hulk

He's the mini-Hulk — a 5-year-old package of power and muscle. Little John Handke has such an unbelievable physique that he'll appear on "That's Incredible!" September 28 with TV's "Incredible Hulk," Lou Ferrigno — who is shown giving little John a big boost. The youngster already is stronger than boys twice his age, says his mom.

Fran Tarantino of "That's Incredible!" must have got the impression the Green Bay Packers were blitzing him again — he broke his nose when he stumbled and fell while exiting from a plane. But despite his swollen beak, the game ex-quarterback insisted on going ahead with the show.

"Dynasty" costar Linda Evans and LA pasta palce impresario George Sano Pietro are happily telling pals they're tying the knot after nearly three years of togetherness.

Has success spoiled "Dilbert Strokes" star Gary Coleman? The pint-size prima donna balked at yielding the spotlight on a recent segment of "The Merv Griffin Show," stubbornly refusing to move over on the couch so that the next guest could be interviewed — while Merv did a slow burn.

Depressed Joan K Worrying Her Pals

By R. Couri Hay

Pals are deeply worried about Joan Kennedy. They say she's terribly depressed over failing to win back hubby Ted — and over reports that he's romancing actress Susan Saint James. And to make matters worse, Joan's dad suffered a heart attack before her eyes in a restaurant... Lia Taylor was hit by a falling skyscraper — papier-mache that is — while lensing an "I Love New York" commercial in the Big Apple. Lia was so shaken it took 12 takes to get her 10-second apfel right.

Lauren Bacall wasn't the only "Bogie's Baby," according to Bogart's ex-secretary, Verita Thompson. In her yet-to-be-published book, "Bogie and Me," Thompson claims to have had a 15-year affair with the star — including 10 years while Bogie was married to Bacall.

Albert made a splash at a poolside party in a posh Momie Carlo villa. The prince and his pals got playfully pushy with each other, and soon all of the 35 guests ended up in the drink — fully dressed.

Andy Gibb is singing goodbye to his West Coast stage musical — "The Pirates of Penzance" — so he'll be free to wed lady love Victoria Principal of TV's "Dallas," pals say. He'd been signed to move with the show from LA to San Francisco, but at the last minute he backed out.

Celebrating 30 years in show biz, Roy Rogers got a real lift from his son, Roy Jr., surprised everyone by stepping up onstage at Knott's Berry Farm near LA and singing with his dad and famous stepmom, Dale Evans. And for his big finish, strapping 6-foot-3 Roy Jr. lifted his dad as the audience cheered wildly.

Gorgeous George Hamilton slipped with a $5 million lawsuit. Comedy writer Marvin Braverman claims he approached Hamilton in 1978 with his script about a gay Zorro, and Hamilton turned him down. But now, with Hamilton riding high in the hit flick "Zorro, the Gay Blade," Braverman says he's been ripped off.

Uplifting experience

With his hair slicked back and a cigarette dangling from his mouth, Herve Villechaise looked like the world's shortest 1960s greaser. The costar of TV's "Fantasy Island" was dressed up to help publicize an LA theater group's production of the musical "Grease." Herve likes to encourage young actors... A rude crew stopped at Diane Keaton's table in a Times Tavern eatery and began gabbing at her nonstop, even after she promised. Finally Sylvester Stallone's beefy actor brother Frankie got up from his own table and ejected the guy, rescuing Diane... And how was YOUR week?

When you're really feeling down in the dumps, you can give yourself a lift by just recharging your emotional batteries, say two experts.

To help you shake off the blues, here are 12 tips from Dr. Sheldon Chisolm, a New York City psychiatrist, and Dr. Eli Feldman, a Great Neck, N.Y., psychologist.

- Do something different.

How to Recharge Your Emotional Batteries

Maybe it's something you've been putting off for a long time — visiting a friend, going away for a weekend, or trying out a new restaurant.

• Get a massage. You don't have to go to a professional. Ask a family member or a friend to give you a rubdown. It tones up your body and is relaxing and pleasurable at the same time.

• Talk to an upbeat person. Seek out someone you know who's successful, a positive thinker.

His or her upbeat attitude may rub off on you.

• Let out your aggression in a positive way. Releasing hostility charges your emotional batteries. For example, if a repairman doesn't do the job properly, tell him about it. • Force yourself to get out — to socialize, even when you're feeling low. For example, if you're invited to a party but really don't feel like partying, force yourself to go. Once you get there you can always leave.

• Find a new friend. A new relationship adds spice to your life.

• Read inspirational literature. Reading the Bible, books of proverbs or other uplifting material will raise your spirits.

Think about the teachings and try to apply them to your own life.

Use a newspaper to find new activities or career opportunities that can add zest to your life.

Even if you have a job, you can read the want ads to stimulate your thinking about a new career or a better position in your present field.

• Try a sauna or hot tub. Then take a cool shower afterward. You'll feel refreshed — and you'll get a psychological lift too.

• Respond to your own needs. Please yourself for a change. If you feel like wearing your hair a certain way, or wearing something off-beat, do it.

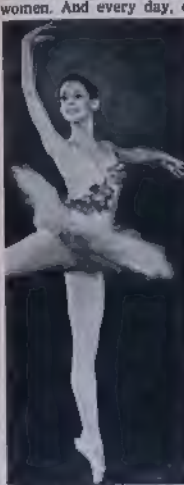

• Contact a person you haven't heard from in a long time. This can always be a morale-booster.

• Go to a place that gives you a positive feeling, where something is going on that is entertaining or fun. For example, it might be a folk dance, or a church social, or a special exhibit at a museum. Events like these can help recharge your emotional batteries.

walks among murderers, thieves and rapists. "There are times I wish I was in a more serene, safer job," says Susan — a jailer. "But I have the feeling that if I wasn't doing this, I would be really bored in another job."

As the corrections director of the overcrowded Jackson County Jail in Kansas City, Mo., Susan, 33, is boss over some 300 prisoners, most of them men.

Once she faced 30 rioting inmates and — simply by talking to them — put an end to the crisis.

"They just gave up," said Susan, who stands just 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs only 115 pounds.

"I simply asked them very quietly to please come out and lay down their arms. I think it was probably just the visual effect of a woman standing there in front of them that did it."

Susan says ballet helps her forget the harsh realities of life inside a prison. "I find ballet the perfect way to end a day."

Fat children are smarter than thin children, according to a medical study.

The doctors at the University of Minnesota Hospitals collected data on some 3,000 youngsters and found that at the age of 4, fat kids had an IQ five points higher than thin kids.

By age 7, the IQ spread was even greater — 10 points, according to the study results reported in the medical journal Pediatrics.

Enquirer Makes
Stars' Dreams
Come True

"MY HEART POUNDED; I FELT FANTASTIC!" CHiPs star Larry Wilcox (right) gets lost word from Maj. Dave Kurner before taking off.

'CHiPs' Star Flies Jet Fighter

Everyone — even a celebrity — has an "impossible dream," some secret fantasy longing for reality. In this series, we're making wishes come true for stars, and they've agreed to share their experiences with you.

Striking above the California desert at almost the speed of sound, "CHiPs" star Larry Wilcox took control of the Skyhawk jet fighter bomber — and sent it into a thrilling barrel roll.

It's unbelievable! Larry exclaimed later as he jumped out of the cockpit. "The most exciting moment of my life."

Thanks to THE ENQUIRER, I've fulfilled my lifelong fantasy.

Larry's secret dream has always been to pilot a jet-fighting plane — and recently THE ENQUIRER made that dream come true with the help of the U.S. Marines and Navy.

The big day started at 4 a.m. at the Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego. There, Larry underwent five hours of preflight training.

"There were lectures on fire and water survival and the use of the parachute and oxygen seat," Larry said. "Finally, I was fitted with the flight suit, gloves and helmet."

"I couldn't believe this was happening! I climbed into the cockpit of the $6 million bomber and strapped myself in. The pilot, Maj. Dave Kurner, fired up the engines. The roar was deafening. My heart pounded. I felt fantastic."

I gave everybody the "thumbs up" signal like a real fighter pilot. Within seconds Maj. Kurner had us airborne. As we streaked through the clouds I felt the basic barrel roll, spinning force against my body — I the jet over.

Then I did some evasive maneuvers. Finally I landed. Maj. Kurner said, "I did a fancy exercise called 'Thank you're ready.' I didn't, a quick snap-left. At a high speed, you pitch the plane up and it goes to the sky. And he re-ground and then instantly snapped it to the left. Then it was time to head back home."

When I got out of the cockpit, I knew I'd just been through the most exhilarating experience of my life.

Beware of mixing certain foods and medications, warn experts — the combination can be hazardous to your health and can even kill you.

"If you're on some kind of medication, the food you eat could make it work slower or faster — and could even prevent it from working at all," revealed Dr. Judith K. Jones, director of the Food and Drug Administration's Division of Drug Experience.

"And it can actually be

dangerous to eat some foods while you're taking certain drugs. They can interact inside your body. Sometimes these reactions can produce a medical crisis or even, though rarely, death."

Foods can slow down or in some cases increase the absorption of medication into the bloodstream, notes Dr. H. Bruce Bosmann, Ph.D., professor and acting chairman of pharmacology at the University of Rochester.

The experts offered this advice:

• If you are taking tet-racycline — an antibiotic — avoid milk, cheese and yogurt. They impair absorption of the drug.

• If you are taking monoamine oxidase (MAO) inhibitors which are sometimes prescribed for depression and high blood pressure be especially wary of aged and fermented foods such as salami, yogurt and sour cream.

MAO inhibitors can react with a substance called tyramine, found in aged and fermented foods to force blood pressure to potentially dangerous levels. Some times causing severe headaches, brain hemorrhages and in extreme cases death, notes Dr. Jones.

• In general, don't take drugs with soda pop, acidic fruit juices or acidic vegetable juices unless you first check with your doctor.

These kinds of drinks can cause excess acidity in the stomach, which interferes with the absorption of certain drugs into the bloodstream.

• Avoid alcohol if you are taking antibiotics, anticoagulants, antidiabetic drugs, antihistamines, high blood pressure drugs. MAO inhibitors or sedatives. Alcohol doesn't mix well with these drugs. For example, alcohol and antihistamines taken together can cause excessive drowsiness — which can be dangerous if you're driving.

• If you're taking drugs for high blood pressure avoid anything containing natural caffeine — such as certain candies and medications. Too much natural caffeine can raise your blood pressure and thus counteract the effect of your medication.

• If you're taking anticoagulant drugs which contain the substance coumarin or indinone, avoid large amounts of foods high in vitamin K — such as liver and leafy green vegetables. They can hinder the drug's effect. Consult your physician or pharmacist to learn the contents of any anticoagulant.

• If you're taking a drug that's very fat soluble, such as Valium or Librium, avoid eating too many fatty foods. A high fat diet will cause highly fat soluble drugs to be poorly absorbed, said Dr. Bosmann.

Middle Child Is Most Popular, but Youngest Tries Harder

Were you a middle child in your family? The youngest in a family of three or more? Your birth order affects your personality, your career, and how you react to people and events, say New York psychologists Bradford Wilson and George Edington, authors of the fascinating new book "First Child, Second Child . . . Your Birth Order Matters."

Your position in your childhood family teaches you most of your assumptions about life and ways of dealing with it, say the psychologists, whose data come from many controlled studies as well as their own clinical experience.

Here, in an adaptation from their book, exclusive in THE ENQUIRER, is a composite sketch of the personalities of the middle child (humblest of four or more would have more than one middle child) and the youngest child in multi-child families.

By BRADFORD WILSON and GEORGE EDINGTON

The middle child is apt to be the most popular of all — well liked, attractive and sexy.

Although you give the appearance of being deeply modest and self-effacing, we know better. Your fantasies of eventually being "discovered" and catapulted to greatness lie just beneath the surface. You dream about having an impact on others, as a friend, enemy, teacher, lover, critic, etc.

Often you feel left out, and live in dread of being hypnosed and upstaged, but you also have a maverick streak which can make you deliberately thumb your nose at many rules and conventions.

You may interject yourself in many situations, but you don't become seriously excited about any. In dealing with people, you tend to have many acquaintances but few you care to call real friends.

You can be conscientious and careful in your work, but rarely get really worked up about it.

A very private person, your deepest feelings can only be guessed at. You've become accustomed to suffering your private pains in silence. You share neither joy nor pain.

At the same time you invariably show a little respect for other's privacy and never ask questions no matter how curious you are.

Fiercely loyal to concepts, values, people are often caught off guard by your being sneaking one causes and individuals your loyalty to longtime peer friends might be called "legendary."

You seldom forgive and you never forget.

Others find your aura of romantic and sexual charisma quite magnetic. Despite your reputation for experimentation, in romance you are probably the most basically monogamous of all. Once you settle for a love partner, it is usually for keeps.

THE YOUNGEST CHILD
You have a burning desire to make an important contribution to the world, to win applause and public acclamation. And you make back-breaking efforts to reach this goal.

By the same token, you tend to be a pushover for praise.

An engaging show-off, you have a rare gift for enjoying the limelight and are probably endowed with a relishing sense of humor which may take the form of clowning.

Some lastborns become very adept at charming the world in various ways, while others grow up with a feeling that the only way they can gain anybody's attention is by making a mess, by being a problem child, or a pest or rebel. If you are a typical Youngest Child, you have a fair share of both the charmer and the rebel.

People are often caught off guard by your being sneaking one minute and hard to deal with the next.

Yours is a two-sided nature. One day you may feel like today's girl to your peer player and the next like a huggable lover. Or a powerhouse of energy one moment and a basket case the next.

You swing between high energy and paralysis, overconfidence and discouragement, honesty and dishonesty, fulfilling goals and procrastination, desire for acceptance and nose-thumbing.

As a group lastborns tend to suffer serious doubts about their ability to solve problems rationally. You are subject to self-doubt.

Any admission about being in the wrong constitutes a confession of inadequacy which you find hard to bear.

Your tendency is to feel that you lead a charmed existence while at the same time living in constant dread that all those near and dear to (especially lovers) may at any moment abandon you.

YOUNGEST GIRL
You are apt to have low tolerance for frustration and a pretty unrealistic concept of your own and other people's rights, limitations and capacities.

You go to emotional extremes, giving everything your all. Deep down you are rarely neutral.

You have extreme polarities — you may either be the life of the party or a wallflower, scamp or prude, chatterbox or bump on a log.

Often, Youngest Girls remain single longer than other people.

Those of your birth order are the most inclined toward ESP — telepathy, location of lost objects, precognition, etc.

YOUNGEST BOY

Known as the "love who never finishes anything," you are prone to dawdle and procrastinate in the face of important undertakings. You long for public recognition and sometimes are willing to work long and hard in order to achieve your goals.

Your personality is characterized by extremes, aggressiveness or passivity, integrity or deviousness, punctuality or procrastination.

Your biggest fear is that your accomplishments will be criticized, sneered at, condemned or just plain ignored.

But just because you aren't a separator doesn't mean that you're the insignificant penultimate of your brothers and sisters may have treated you as.

Society you may be either gregarious or a near loner. And sadly, until you reach your middle years, your love life is apt to be stormy and filled with heartbreak.

NEXT WEEK: Two-sibling combinations — older brother of younger sister, older sister of younger brother, etc.

In ENQUIRER Test of Honesty ... 16 People Put in Claims for $5,000 They Never Lost

A surprising 16 people responded to an ad in the lost and found columns of the biggest newspapers in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago — and tried to claim $5,000 that was not theirs.

What they didn't know was that the ad was placed by The ENQUIRER as an experiment in honesty. There was no $5,000.

AD that we ran in Chicago Tribune brought interesting replies. That's my life savings." He specified bills in denominations of $100, $50 and $20.

A Chicago man wrote saying that the money was his — and that it included $2,252 worth of food stamps.

A man in California concocted a story claiming that a courier he employed had lost the money. He returned the man wrote, would save the courier's job and up until he lost the lost — his untarnished reputation for honesty and reliability.

The offer was not only offered $500 reward for the return of the money, he offered the finder's fee.

Another California man, in an obvious bid for sympathy, wrote in response to the ad:

"I lost my money I am 80 years old."

— HAL JACQUES

A man in Los Angeles sent a postcard saying:

"I lost $5,000 in a brown manila envelope. If you are honest enough to return, your reward will be 50 percent."

He said on the postcard that the money was all in the denomination of $100 bills.

A woman who wrote from New York didn't even bother to lie about losing the money nor did she think to offer a reward for its return.

Her letter requesting the money said simply: "If what you found in an envelope was $5,000 in $100 bills, please send it to me."

Ruthless Cuckoo Chick Kicks Out the Competition

In the incredible world of animals, there's nothing cuckoo about the European cuckoo bird — it's the biggest free-loader of a time. In fact, mom doesn't even bother to build a nest. She cons some other species of bird to hatch — and feed — her offspring! It all begins when the female cuckoo spies a nest of freshly laid eggs. She swoops in and devours one (above left) and replaces it with one of her own. The photo above center shows a nest containing three red warbler eggs and one brown cuckoo egg. The mom cuckoo's timing is so precise that the baby cuckoo usually hatches one hour before the other bird's eggs — and the chick promptly nukes up the job that its mother started by ridding the other eggs out of the nest (photo right). That means that all of the food the foster mother warbler brings to the nest goes right to the voracious cuckoo chick (bottom right) who consumes approximately half its body weight each day. And the not-so-clever warbler knows the wiser

Housework Can Be Harmful for Hubbies

By DAN SCHWARTZ

Husbands, beware! Housework can be hazardous to your health.

That's the startling conclusion of a top psychology expert who says that men who voluntarily do housework are more likely to suffer heart attacks and stress.

If a man is doing housework willingly, it's not the stress of the male macho image, but the stress of increasing his risk of heart disease and heart attack, reports Stanford University psychologist Dr. Philip Zimbardo.

And University of Wisconsin psychologist Dr. Roy E. Short agrees: Generally, men doing housework suffer more stress.

And this seems to face a greater threat of hypertension and heart attack.

Although men who like housework might not suffer greater stress, most men endanger their lives by doing household chores, say the experts.

Men doing housework suffer stress because they're engaging in an activity they're generally inexperienced at doing. Dr. Short added.

Because of the male macho image, men can suffer psychological stress when doing housework because they feel it's womanly.

Holiday Inns Have Worst Fire Record

Among motels and hotel chains, Holiday Inns have by far the worst record for fires, says Consumer Newswatch newspaper.

The next worst record belongs to Hilton hotels, according to the report based on data from the National Fire Protection Association, a safety organization in Quincy, Mass.

The number and severity of the holiday inn blazes appear to be related to design features of the motel and to company procedures that made fires more destructive than they might have been, according to an article in the Wall Street Journal.

How to Look Your Sexy Best at Bedtime

Summer or winter, you can look your most sensual at bedtime by following the advice on nightwear fit and fabric from fashion expert Brigitte Nioche, author of the new book "The Sensual Dresser." Here, in the final installment from her book, exclusive in THE ENQUIRER, Nioche tells how to look your most seductive when you go to bed.

By BRIGITTE NIOCHE

Because sleeping isn't the only thing you do in bed, you should consider your nightclothes as tantalizing appetizers.

A nightgown should show enough skin to arouse interest, but hide enough to keep the mystery.

Because nightclothes are more exposing than other garments, pay special attention to your assets: the areas you want to show most. Firm breasts can afford minimal coverage or transparent fabrics. Nice legs can be shown to their best advantage in short styles or through long slits. And exposed shoulders are a most attractive feature—one that every woman can show regardless of her figure.

Here are some tips to help you look—and be—sensual at bedtime:

- A long nightgown should be truly long. One that comes only to your ankles will detract from your sensuality.

- Wear designs that are easy to undo and get out of.

- Cutouts and slits add a sensual note. They can be on the side, the front or the back; choose the one that exposes what you want to show.

BOOK BONUS

- Choose fabrics that have a sheen, are soft to the touch and don't cling. Silk satin is the most luxurious but also the most difficult to care for. Good alternatives include polyester satin, Charmeuse and soft-cling tricot.

- Lace trimmings always make nightclothes more beautiful.

- Consider shades you've never worn before, something different from the habitual pinks and light blues. Try black. The contrast that black creates with any skin color is most exciting.

- Slippers make a big difference. The ultimate chic is to match them to the color of your gown or to the color of your robe. They should always have a little heel.

Before we speak about sexy styles for nightwear, let me point out which ones are not. At the top of the list of unsexy designs is the flannel nightgown. The style is overly sensual and the fabric makes the wearer appear manly.

Also avoid anything that is completely closed up to the neck.

Equally unimpressive is the short nightgown or sleep shirt that ends above the knee. It makes the legs cute and sexy look for a fairly slim woman. And it completely exposes your legs, which makes them look slimmer.

A sexy gown should expose the neck and shoulders.

What's most becoming for the rest of the figure is determined by the size of the bust. For a small bust, one-shoulder styles, V-necks open to the waist or just below the bust with gathers coming from the shoulders, a bodice cut straight across the top of the breasts or as close to the nipples as comfortable and held by thin straps, a bodice with lace around the top of the breasts, held by straps, with the straight falling fabric.

For a medium bust, if you are firm, you can wear any style at all, especially open to the waist, fitted at the bust and waist and transparent fabrics. If you're not firm, you're better off with a style that supports the breasts.

For a large bust, a large bust usually goes with a larger size figure and this body should never consider anything that is transparent. Instead choose lower-cut styles with fullness coming from below the bust or from the shoulder, gowns with long sleeves, open necklines such as a large boat neck, deep V neck or a low scoop neck.

The baby doll nightie is a cute and sexy look for a fairly slim woman. And it completely exposes your legs, which makes them look slimmer.

Many women don't care for pajamas, because they give a feeling of being confined.

However, if you do wear them, they look younger and more sensual with short sleeves. A longer jacket is also more flattering.

The robe you wear should also look sensual.

The most popular and becoming robe style for women is the same design as for men—the classical shawl-collar style. It's suitable for any figure type. The long collar will help a small woman appear taller and a heavy woman look slimmer.

Robes with a zipper up the front can also look becoming—especially on a heavy woman. And the advantage of the zipper is that you can close it low or high.

No robe will look elegant if your nightie is showing whether at the hem or at the neckline. To avoid this, take your nightgown off before putting on your robe.

Hug Your Wife — It Will Help Her Lose Weight

By DAN SCHWARTZ

Want your wife to lose weight? Hug her more!

That's the advice of New York City psychiatrist and weight-loss expert Dr. Leo Wollman—who's found that many women overeat and pack on pounds when their mates do not show them enough affection.

Dr. Wollman, an endocrinologist, says a study he conducted has shown that hugging and cuddling help overweight women shed those extra pounds.

In the study, Dr. Wollman put 25 groups of 25 women each on identical diets—but with different helpings of love.

"In one group of 25, we solicited the active help of the husbands, asking them to provide their wives with much more in the way of daily signs of physical affection—more hugging, cuddling, kissing, petting."

The second group of 25 women were on an identical diet but we made no attempt to contact their husbands.

The results were very impressive. In the cuddled and hugged group, 7 of the 25 reached their weight goals within six months compared to only nine of the 25 women in the control group."

Weight losses ranged from 12 to 26 pounds, Dr. Wollman revealed.

And even more impressive was the fact that at the end of 18 months, nine of the "hugged" women were still keeping their weight off—while only three of those in the control group remained slim.

Dr. Wollman advises men with overweight wives to get physically close to their mates. If they want them to shed weight:

"When you're watching TV with your wife, cuddle up to her."

"Hold hands in the movies or when you walk down the street. Keep in mind that the good physical reassurance she's loved," he said.

"If you do this consistently, chances are she'll begin to lose weight quite naturally."

Dr. Neil Solomon, a weight loss expert and former assistant professor of psychiatry at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, agrees.

If a husband will do his best to satisfy his wife's real hunger—paying attention to her the way she desires her appetite for food will be curbed and she'll bound to do better on a reducing diet."

A Monster From Outer Space?

A close encounter of the third kind? With bristling antennae and splayed paws, this noseless creature certainly looks like some moviemaker's version of a visitor from outer space. Actually, it's an axolotl, a salamander that lives in the lakes around Mexico City. This one is a larva, the stage of life between hatching from the egg and adulthood. Eventually, the little creature will grow to be about 10 inches long.

Don't believe your friends when they ask you to be honest with them. All they really want is to be misinformed in the good opinion they have of themselves.

Your Rights on Car Emission Controls

Under federal law, if your car is less than five years old or has less than 50,000 miles on it, the manufacturer must replace or repair any faulty emission control parts, according to Changing Times. Major parts such as the catalytic converter, carburetor, PCV valve, air pump and fuel injectors are covered by the law.

Also included under the federal law are hoses, gaskets and clamps that are used with any of these parts.

An Iron-Clad Promise from Geritol.

The most common nutritional problem for young women today is iron-poor blood. Yet there's one product that will give you all the iron you need. That's Geritol. And that's a promise. Geritol also promises to replace important vitamins you tend to lose daily, including the B-Complex and C vitamins which your body cannot store.

Because iron and vitamins are essential to your health, promise yourself a Geritol tablet every day. Over the years, more women have come to rely on the iron-clad promise from Geritol than any other iron and vitamin supplement.

The $12,000 Secret of an Ohio Housewife

Have you tried to make an honest dollar at home lately?

My wife and I did. And we found ourselves flooded with bogus envelope stuffing schemes, "party plans" and a variety of other non-profit balderdash. It was a sour experience.

Then, several years ago at a bridge party, one of the guests began discussing a very different and special home "money project." The secret was literally whispered across the table.

We discussed the idea as we were driving home. We decided to try it.

The project kept us busy about four hours a week. We used our dining room as an "office." At first our income was small — about $65.00 to $75.00 per week. But as the weeks passed we began making hundreds of dollars each week — all at home.

Let me emphasize one thing. This is very important. Our "money project" is moral, honest and downright enjoyable. And it's 100% your own. It doesn't involve working for anyone else.

I explained the project to my mother in Akron, Ohio. She was 71 years old and lived by herself in an apartment on W. Market St. But within the first 90 days she made over $3,000.00. All by herself.

As our curiosity grew, we discovered a variety of other people making money but with somewhat different projects...

I talked with an Ohio housewife who's been earning thousands of dollars for over 11 years.

- She provides a needed service to her neighbor hood.
- No one comes to her home — nor does she go to anyone else's.
- She uses only her telephone, a spiral notebook and a small filing box.
- She makes up to $100.00 per week spare time.
- Her service requires no technical skill of any kind. Some states require a simple license.
- Many works for no one else. She does no selling whatsoever. Most of her clients call her at home.
- Her service is so simple that almost anyone could start the same project in just 9 days!

A woman in Pennsylvania uses a similar project to make up to $300.00 per week — all in cash — all earned at home.

An Oregon husband-wife team started the same project we did. In a recent letter they reported gross income of over $14,000.00 — all earned at home!

Obviously, this is except onal, income. What you make will be large y up to you. But the income potential from some of these projects can be staggering. For example, a California couple using the same project we used made $ 4,870.00 in just five months.

Again, these data are accurate or we couldn't and wouldn't — print them.

HOW TO START

This isn't a "get rich quick" scheme. These money projects will require time and effort on your part.

But you won't need "money" to begin. Most of the projects can be started on less than $25.00, many on less than $10.00.

You won't need a car. In a few cases it would be helpful, but not necessary.

You won't need youth. Maturity and experience are excellent assets.

You won't need an "office." Just one corner of a spare room is usually sufficient.

Best of all, you won't have to wait. Most of these projects can be started in just 9 days!

We've put everything every secret in a simple Guide. It's entitled THE $12,000 HOUSEWIFE.

What Stars Did Before They Made It

Gregory Peck Was a Janitor & Night Watchman

When Gregory Peck was young, he worked so hard as a night watchman and delivery man for an oil company that his boss told him he'd be earning $300 a month in 10 to 15 years!

That sent the ambitious high school graduate searching for a more lucrative career. He quit his job, dreamed of a doctor's bank account and enrolled in printed courses at the University of California at Berkeley.

But the grind of wading through thick chemistry and physics books was too much. He switched directions again and took up English and drama.

Parts in two school plays gave him his first taste of acting, but odd jobs — as a waiter, busboy, janitor and parking lot attendant — paid the bills.

And when he finished college he was broke but filled with dreams of acting. "I bummed my way from San Francisco to New York riding in freight cars and ducking the inspectors," he said. "I resolved to make a career in New York."

But he orgh lights young Peck saw in New York weren't shining on him; they were at the 1939 World's Fair where he earned $25 a week as a Barker.

His next job nearly doubled his salary — a $40-a-week stint as a guide showing sightseers around Radio City Music Hall.

Working in a summer stock acting company, Peck, whose credits now include 80 films — got his first real break when a Broadway producer spotted him. Though his first plays were flops, Peck was discovered again — this time by a Hollywood producer who offered him his

Men Who Will Do Anything to Get Their Hands on Your Car

They'll swipe your car while you're getting married or attending a funeral. They'll even take it while you're asleep in the back.

Sometimes they're chased by owners who are stark-naked, other times they'll find a gun rammed into their ribs.

They are the repo men — the pros who will legally reclaim your car when you fail to make payments on it. And they're so good at it they can get into a car, replace the ignition and drive it away in as little as 30 seconds.

By RICHARD BAKER

It's a job that gets them shot at, beaten and sometimes arrested. But it pays off in cash for relieving the curse, the thrill of beating tricky debtors at their own game and a freewheeling lifestyle.

Sometimes, the repo man plays a cat-and-mouse game that lasts for weeks with an owner who hides his car, hoists it up on blocks at night or even rents garage space to keep it away from the gnaty grabber.

But the stealth of the nighttime robbers pays off. After months of tracking one car owner, a repo man finally caught up to him during his wedding reception at a park.

"At the reception one of our men made his move," said Pittsburgh, Pa., reposessor

Sid Dickler. "He coolly walked up to the groom's car and saw the keys were in the ignition."

"He drove off trailing a 'Just Married' sign and tin can."

In another case, Dickler caught up to a man who defaulted on his car loan — as the guy attended the funeral of his father.

A Florida repo man recalled one night when he picked the ignition on a car in 30 seconds flat.

"As I was driving down, the black this guy comes running after us stark naked, yelling and screaming at us to stop," said the repo man. "We've had women come out naked running after us to stop."

Dickler recalled a naked man who apparently planned to shoot him.

"I came out of the house naked, raising my arms as if to flee a rifle at us. The only problem was he forgot the gun in his haste to get outside and shoot us!"

But often the guns drawn by furious car owners are real.

"We've had people pull shotguns or rifles on us," says Dickler.

"A lot of these people will give you a hell of a rough time," agreed the Florida repo man. "I've had them push a gun barrel into my stomach and threaten to shoot me. We've had guys in the repo business who've been punched in the face and beaten up and shot at. But you can't be timid. If you're timid you're going to lose."

Using special tools to get into locked cars, the repo men work for banks, used-car lots, collection agencies and private detectives.

"One day we nabbed a car and the owner was asleep in the backseat," recalled Dickler. "We just drove away with the man groggily asking, 'What's going on?'"

New Diagnosis Machine Is Better Than X-Rays — With No Radiation

Medical experts are hailing a remarkable new "water bed" diagnosis machine that delivers sharp, clear pictures of the body's interior — without using radiation.

The amazing machine uses harmless ultrasound to pinpoint tumors, cysts and other scanners. "And the ultrasound water bed machine is a breakthrough!" enthuses Dr. John H. Miller of Children's Hospital of Los Angeles.

The X-ray machines and CAT scanners both employ potentially hazardous radiation. But the new machine, known as an Octoson, sends out only sound waves. It consists of a flat plastic bed resting on a tank of water. At the bottom of the tank are disks that send out high-frequency sound waves which enter the patient's body and are bounced back by tissues and abnormalities such as tumors. The returning waves are picked up by a computer which converts them into a TV picture of the body's interior. "It's safe. It's safer than CAT scans. There's no known risk with ultrasound while X-rays can cause cancer," said Dr. Donald King, professor of radiology at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Another major advantage of the Octoson over the CAT scan and X-rays is that it can distinguish areas that are fluid from areas that are solid. So doctors can now learn immediately if a suspicious mass is a benign cyst which is liquid inside or a solid tumor that could be malignant.

"If it's a cyst, we can tell and avoid exploratory surgery," noted Dr. Jeffrey Leick, assistant professor of radiology at the Cancer Research Treatment Center, University of New Mexico.

The Octoson also shows the texture of many organs better than CAT scans. This allows doctors to make more accurate diagnoses. They can spot an abnormal texture in kidney tissue that suggests kidney failure, noted Dr. Barbara Reid, assistant attending professor at pediatric radiology at Children's Hospital of Los Angeles.

The water bed machine gives better pictures not only of the kidneys but a number of other organs as well, including the gallbladder, liver and its ducts, spleen, ovaries and heart, said Dr. Reid.

And the machine is better for examining babies and also small children. Dr. King pointed out:

The Octoson also can pinpoint abnormalities in fetuses. This early detection gives doctors a chance to treat the babies with drugs, said Dr. David Wood, staff radiologist at St. Mary's Hospital in Kansas City, Mo.

So far, there are about 20 water bed machines in operation in American clinics, including Kansas City, Las Vegas, Chicago, Los Angeles and Memphis.

Only 1 Family in 14 Can Afford A New Home

A most half of all American families could afford to buy a new home in 1979 but today less than 7 percent of U.S. families can afford to purchase a new home, reports the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

As of May 1981, the median price for a new single-family home was $72,600 compared to $37,400 in 1974.

Work Will Be a Breeze In Offices of the Future

Millions of office workers, including secretaries and clerks, will be happier, more productive and less burdened in the fantastic office of the future, experts say.

By PAUL F. LEVY

It's the average worker who is going to benefit most," reveals Roy Zabolocki, an expert in office automation at the Stanford Research Institute.

He and Thomas Keenan, assistant professor of computer science at Canada's University of Calgary, together painted this fascinating picture.

In the office of the future, you likely won't have a desk. You will relax in a chair molded to your body — and the chair will slide into the open end of what looks like a big egg, or pod.

As you face into the pod, you will be surrounded by video screens, instruments and computers," said Keenan.

In front of you there will be a microphone into which you can give voice commands to the computers.

If your job involves any typing, your pod will be outfitted with a super-sophisticated typewriter.

Just talk to it. It will take down everything that you say to it," according to Keenan. Let's say you've just dictated a business letter to your typewriter.

To mail it, all you have to do is tell the typewriter where to send it.

The letter will go out electronically over a nationwide computer network, and your message will be read on a video screen by the person to whom it was sent.

A firm's clerks and secretaries won't have to monkey around organizing filing systems and searching for information in filing cabinets.

For example, if you want to file a copy of that letter that you just sent out, then simply say so.

It'll be done by computer. And if you ever want to refer back to that letter, ask the computer to find it for you. It'll flash up on a video screen for you to read. All filing will be done this way.

"By 1990," predicts Roy Zabolocki, "20 to 25 million people will be affected by these advances."

Choice Retort

Hubert Humphrey once said that he learned the hard way not to cross bars with the late President Harry Truman.

He recalled a time when he was campaigning for the Senate and HST came through Missouri on a visit.

I asked him how some Minnesota seemed to have all the Swedes and Missouri seemed to have all the mules," Humphrey said.

Harry fixed me with a steady eye and snapped, "I guess it's because Missouri had first choice."

Wall's Not All It's Cracked Up to Be

It looks like a crumbling wall — but it's really an optical illusion. Artist John Pugh stands in front of the 25-foot-high mural he painted on the east wall of Taylor Hall at California's State University at Chico. The mural is so realistic, many people have to touch it to convince themselves it's a painting. It took Pugh six months to create it, working 8 to 15 hours a day.

I Smashed My Crutch Over That Punk's Head And K.O'd His Holdup

Although on crutches, Tim Springer didn't hesitate when he came across a knife-wielding robber holding up a store in Des Moines, Iowa. Springer, 20, saw red — and felled the crook with a crutch. "Tim should get a good citizen award," declared Des Moines Police Capt. John Swan. Here, in Springer's own words, is his account of his heroic August 4 deed.

By TIM SPRINGER

I'm sick of punks. I'm fed up to the teeth with the way they push law-abiding people around.

That's why, when I walked into my local 7-Eleven store and saw the rotten punk holding up the nice lady who works there, I decided to give him exactly what he deserved.

I'd gone to the store for a six pack of beer. I'd broken my ankle while water-skiing a few days before so I was limping and on crutches.

When I entered, the lady clerk's eyes told me something was wrong. They were stretched wide open, filled with horror.

Then I saw the knife. This guy had it pressed right up under her chin — if she had moved one inch, he'd have it her throat. I learned later that the guy had threatened to cut her heart out if she didn't do what he was told.

I knew what she was going through. When I was 15 and working in a fast food joint, two guys had walked in waving guns and made us lie on the floor while they robbed the place. I was sure they were going to shoot us. My mind had been numb with terror.

Well, I could see something of the same in this lady's eyes. She thought she was going to get her throat cut. Her eyes told me just how horrified she was.

She's a superlady — too good to be scared half to death by some rotten punk. So I didn't really think twice about what to do. I leaned one crutch against the wall, shifted a couple of steps closer and lifted the other crutch with both hands.

I just whaled into him. I cracked him over the head. Now I weigh about 80 and at weights, so I can hit some body pretty hard. The padded part of my crutch broke off and one of the straps split.

The guy didn't go down at first. He dropped the knife, grabbed all the money and headed out the door. He got one step outside and I jumped down unconscious. His head split and bleeding.

I huddled outside after him.

I thought for a moment I'd killed the guy.

He was even out. I went back inside and asked the lady to call the police and an ambulance.

The guy recovered. I was convinced that I didn't want to kill anybody under any circumstances.

But I'm glad I did it. He got what he deserved — and I did it again!

Head Over Heels — At 110 m.p.h.

Here's a boater who really flips over racing! In this spectacular series of photographs, Billy Bradley in his drag boat the Salvage 1 takes a turn for the worse. At 110 m.p.h., Bradley's hands leave the steering wheel (above left) as his craft starts to veer. Now as the boat dips, Bradley is tossed out (above) and sails through the air (left) as his automatic safety parachute begins to open to slow him down. With the chute fully opened (below), Bradley is flipped over. But now trouble looms (bottom left) as the boat crashes down on top of him. Bradley disappears beneath the boat (bottom right) in a cloud of spray. But he's lucky. He escaped the Chowchilla, Calif., boat mishap with only slight injuries.

Kenny Rogers Regaining Love Of Two Kids He Left Behind

Superstar Kenny Rogers — who for years ignored his two children in his burning drive for success — now is desperately trying to make up for his neglect of them.

The gray-bearded singer has already managed to reestablish close, loving ties with his daughter Carole Lynne, 23 — whom he never saw or even spoke to for 12 long years while she was growing up.

Now Rogers is engaged in a heartwarming struggle to win the love of his 17-year-old son Kenny Jr., but he's finding it tough to overcome years of bitterness. The 43-year-old singer — who's tormented by guilt over his treatment of his children — recently told a friend: "I know my kids have been proud of my success, but I know, too, they've been terribly disappointed that over the years I wasn't there when they needed me most."

"But I'm trying to make it up to them. I'm doing everything possible to be the father they never had."

"I love them dearly. They're wonderful kids and I want desperately to make their dreams come true."

"I know I can't walk into their lives and sweep away the hurt they must have felt when their dad wasn't with them when they were growing up. It could be said that I've been selfish — but they've always been on my mind and in my heart."

Kenny's beautiful fourth wife, "Honey" Marianne Rogers, confessed to a close friend: "Kenny has spent many sleepless nights worrying about the children of his former marriages. He's suffered a great sense of guilt about them. It's made much of his success hollow."

Rogers — flat broke just five years ago — now rakes in more than $13 million a year. He owns a $14 million Beverly Hills mansion and other homes, a fleet of cars and two jet planes. Sales of his records

"Kenny openly admits that driving ambition wrecked his previous marriages, and the children were victims of his struggle for success," said an insider.

Rogers himself has confessed to interviewers that success was "crucially important" to him.

Rogers' blue-eyed daughter Carole is the product of his first marriage, which ended in divorce in 1960. The singer claimed her until she was 6, but then, as he got caught up in his music career, he ignored her and for the next 12 years never saw or spoke to Carole.

"I knew he was my father," Carole told The ENQUIRER. "I would see him on television. As I grew older, I kept wondering: 'Why doesn't he want to see me? Doesn't he love me?'"

In 1977, when she was 18, Carole finally met her father again. At a concert in Houston, she went backstage to see him. "I didn't have to tell him who I was — he knew me the minute he saw me," she recalled. "We hugged each other and cried."

Rogers' career as a country singer was just taking off at that time. He and Carole corresponded infrequently until two years ago — and then, as he finally reached superstardom, Rogers began showing his long-ignored daughter with gifts.

"He gave me great presents for Christmas and birthdays, and a lot of jewelry," she said. "He helped me pay for college, and when I recently graduated he flew me out to California for a week and gave me a brand-new car, a Datsun 280ZX. It's beautiful — I just love it."

"Now I talk to him at least two or three times a month. We've gotten very close. I think he's great. I love him."

Encouraged by his success in winning Carole's love, Rogers contacted his ex-wife Margo about two years ago and urged her to help him reestablish his relationship with his son Kenny Jr., who was 13 years old at the time. He hadn't visited the youngster in five years even though he had visitation rights, said friends.

"Margo was extremely bitter at first," a source close to Rogers disclosed.

"But Margo, who lives near Palm Springs, relented 18 months ago and let young Kenny make occasional visits to his father's home in Los Angeles."

At first things were "very strained" between father and son, but now, as the visits continue, 17-year-old Kenny Jr. is slowly beginning to understand the bitterness of the divorce and why his father ignored him for so long, said the source.

"The situation is still not as good as I would wish it, but he's proceeding slowly and cautiously, trying to win back his son's affection. He badly wants a stronger relationship," the source confided.

"Kenny hates talking about the problem openly. It's very painful for him. But he's made absolutely certain that his son knows the door is always open to him."

Rogers' wife Marianne — who's expecting their first baby in December — says she's "behind him all the way" in his attempts to win the love of his children, the friend said.

"Marianne told me: 'Now he's at the pinnacle of his career and he's doing the number one thing on his mind —' putting his personal relationships in order, particularly with his children,'"

Rogers' press agent and close friend, Guy Thomas, confided: "The process of reconciliation with Kenny Jr. is a slow and painful one. But Kenny loves his son very much and wants to mend all the broken fences."

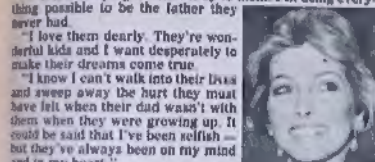

Rogers' first wife, Janice, confesses that his heartfelt attempts to make good his failures as a father have erased much of her own bitterness.

"It takes a pretty big man to turn around and say, 'I'm sorry,'" Janice told The ENQUIRER.

"He left us to get to the top. Now that he's there, he's trying to patch up the troubles he left behind. I think it's wonderful of him."

Now is the lowest tar 100s.

But it's easy to see why some people think the right answer is Carlton. Carlton's been advertising itself as lowest for a very long time. And, in fact, at one time, it was.

The truth is that today, Now 100s Soft Pack.
